

LifePath 2010® Fund Merging with the LifePath® Income Fund Effective November 20, 2009

Effective November 20, 2009, the State Farm LifePath 2010 Fund will merge with the State Farm LifePath Income Fund. As a result, the LifePath 2010 Fund will no longer be offered to customers and current LifePath 2010 shareholders will automatically be transferred to the LifePath Income Fund with a value equal to their position in the LifePath 2010 Fund as of the close on November 20, 2009.

Shareholders of the LifePath 2010 Fund will receive a confirmation statement following the merger with details concerning the transaction.

There will be no federal income tax impacts to current LifePath 2010 shareholders as a result of the merger.

Target-date funds, such as the State Farm LifePath Funds, are designed to gradually reduce risk by evolving to a more conservative investment mix over time and as investors get closer to their targeted savings year and expect to start drawing on their savings. As each LifePath Fund nears its target year (i.e.: 2010), it automatically merges with the LifePath Income Fund which provides the most conservative investment mix among the LifePath Funds.

LifePath Funds are target-date portfolios that provide a diversified exposure to stocks, bonds, and/or cash for those investors who have a specific date in mind (in this case, years 2010, 2020, 2030, 2040 or 2050) for retirement or another goal. The target date is the approximate date when investors plan to start withdrawing assets. The investment objectives of each fund are adjusted over time to become more conservative as the target date approaches. The principal value of the fund(s) is not guaranteed at any time, including at the target date.

It is important to note that there is market risk involved when investing in mutual funds, including possible loss of principal.
